

In closing,

This Convention was brought about by close partnership and collaboration between civil society and states. The inclusion of communities, survivors, NGOs and civil society experts in its implementation has been – and will remain – critical to its success.